No officer has or has had an interest in material transactions entered into or contemplated by the Funds, other than day-to-day transactions.

Exercise of Voting Rights

Funds which invest in other Funds will refrain from voting at meetings of unitholders of the underlying funds, and will not duplicate the management fees charged in connection with the underlying funds.

Personal Transactions Policy

The Fund Manager has adopted a personal transaction policy to deal with any possible internal conflict of interest under which subjected employees must obtain prior approval for transactions in connection with portfolio transactions.

Short-term Transaction Policy

As a general rule, the investments in the Funds are long term investments. Excessive trading engaged in for the purpose of timing the market is generally not a recommendable tactic. Excessive trading can also harm a Fund's performance by forcing it to keep cash or sell investments to fund redemptions, affecting all participants in the Fund. A short term trade will be considered inappropriate when a purchase and a redemption are made within a period of thirty (30) days that the Fund Manager believes is detrimental to the participants of a Fund, or take advantage of a Fund when such Fund holds securities the price of which has been established in other time zones or illiquid securities infrequently traded. In such a case, the Fund Manager reserves the right to refuse a purchase from a Fund, to advise the participant of the reasons for the refusal and to close down the account, if applicable.

The Fund Manager supervises and monitors transactions daily to identify excessive or short-term trading and detect abusive transactions. If the Fund Manager believes that one or more participants are engaging in short term transactions, it may refuse one or more current or future purchases or switches of securities if, in the opinion of the Fund Manager, purchases and redemptions made over a given period may be detrimental to the participants of the Funds.

Affiliated Entities

The Fund Manager and Professionals' Financial - Private Management Inc., the principal distributor of the Funds, are held by the same shareholder, being Professionals' Financial Inc.

Mr. André Sirard is both a director and an officer of the Fund Manager, of Professionals' Financial - Private Management Inc. and of Professionals' Financial Inc.

Professionals' Financial - Private Management Inc. provides brokerage services to the Funds. The amount of fees paid to Professionals' Financial - Private Management Inc. by the Funds appears in the audited financial statements of the Funds.

Dealer Manager Disclosure

The Funds constitute "dealer-managed mutual funds", as defined in Regulation 81-102 respecting Investment Funds ("Regulation 81-102"), by virtue of the Fund Manager and Professionals' Financial - Private Management Inc. (an investment dealer) both being held by the same shareholder, being Professionals' Financial Inc.

Subject to certain conditions or prior authorizations, each of the Funds is in compliance with the restrictions described in section 4.1 of Regulation 81-102 concerning prohibited investments, namely:

- (1) no investment will knowingly be made in a class of securities of an issuer during, or for 60 days after, the period in which an associate or affiliate of Professionals' Financial acts as an underwriter in the distribution of securities of that class of securities, except as a member of the selling group distributing 5% or less of the securities underwritten;
- (2) no investment will be made in a class of securities of an issuer of which a partner, director or officer is also a partner, director, officer or employee of the Fund Manager or of an affiliate of Professionals' Financial or of an associate of the Fund Manager, unless such partner, director, officer or employee of the issuer:
 - does not participate in the formulation of investment decisions made on behalf of the Fund;
 - does not have access before implementation to information concerning investment decisions made on behalf of the Fund; and
 - does not influence, other than through research reports, statistical studies or other publications generally available to clients, the investment decisions made on behalf of the Fund.

Policies and Practices

Derivatives

As part of their investment objectives, the Funds intend to use derivatives to establish and to cover positions in the market, although derivatives will not be used to constitute leveraged portfolios. The Fund Manager's team of investment professionals is charged with the management of such positions on a day-to-day basis. Although there are no written management policies or procedures that specifically deal with derivatives, the Investment Committee will develop management parameters to limit the use of derivatives. It will also review the appropriateness and scope of the possible impact of positions taken and covered positions through the use of derivatives at its meetings (approximately eight times a year). Further information on the use of derivatives appears under "Standardized Derivatives" on page 36 of this document.

Short Selling

Certain Funds may engage in short selling, as described under "Short Selling Risk" on page 36 of this document.

The portfolio adviser has set up policies and practices involving short selling by the Funds (including procedures for managing the risk described in the above-mentioned sections of this document). Any agreement, policy or practice which applies to a Fund involving short selling (including trading controls and limits, in addition to the above-mentioned items) has been prepared and reviewed by senior management of the Fund Manager. The IRC is informed of any short sale policy of the Fund Manager. The decision to carry through with a given short sale is made by the principal portfolio adviser, and it is reviewed and overseen as part of the permanent compliance and risk control measures of the Fund Manager.

Securities Lending, Repurchase and Reverse Repurchase Transactions

To increase returns, the Funds may enter into securities lending, repurchase and reverse repurchase agreements consistent with their investment objectives and in accordance with the standard investment restrictions and practices set forth in Canadian securities regulation, including Regulation 81-102. In a securities lending transaction, a Fund lends securities held in its portfolio to a borrower for a fee. In a securities repurchase agreement, the Fund sells securities held in its portfolio for a single price and agrees to buy back the securities from the same party at a later date in the hope of realizing a profit. In a securities reverse purchase agreement, the Fund purchases securities for cash at a single price and agrees to sell them back to the same party in the hope of realizing a profit.

As manager of the Funds, the Fund Manager entered into an agency agreement in connection with securities lending transactions on behalf of the Funds with a sub-custodian of the Funds, State Street Bank and Trust Company, as agent. State Street Bank and Trust Company manages securities lending transactions for the Funds. The agreement complies with the relevant provisions of Regulation 81-102.

The Fund Manager manages the risks associated with securities lending transactions as set out in the section "Securities Lending, Repurchase and Reverse Repurchase Risk" on page 32 of this document. The agreement notably provides that the agent must:

- ensure that the applicable provisions of Regulation 81-102 are complied with, and in particular that the aggregate value of the securities loaned in lending transactions does not exceed 50% of the net asset value of the Fund concerned;
- engage in securities lending transactions with dealers and institutions in Canada and abroad that have solid credentials and have first undergone a stringent credit evaluation (the "Counterparties");
- maintain controls, risk management policies and procedures, internal records (including a list of approved Counterparties based on generally accepted creditworthiness standards), transaction and credit limits for each Counterparty and collateral diversification standards; and
- determine daily the market value of the securities loaned by the Funds concerned in connection with a securities lending transaction and the liquid assets or other collateral held by the Funds concerned. In the event the value of the collateral is less than 102% of the market value of the loaned or sold securities, the agent will ask the Counterparty to provide other liquid assets or other securities as collateral to the Funds concerned to cover the shortfall.

At least once a year, the Fund Manager and the agent review the agent's policies and procedures so that the risks associated with securities lending operations are duly managed.

The agent provides the Fund Manager and the Trustee with regular, complete and timely reports summarizing the transactions relating to securities lending. With the assistance of the portfolio adviser, the Fund Manager will, on a yearly basis, examine the agreement and the agent's reports to ensure that they remain appropriate and consistent with applicable laws. At the present time, the Fund Manager does not resort to risk assessment procedures or conduct simulations to test portfolio solidity in difficult conditions. The Fund Manager instead imposes certain limits and controls, such as those described above in regard to securities lending operations.

Each securities lending transaction, repurchase agreement and reverse repurchase agreement must qualify as a “securities lending arrangement” pursuant to section 260 of the Income Tax Act (Canada) (the “Tax Act”).

Before initiating any securities repurchase and reverse repurchase operations for the Funds, the Fund Manager will enter into a written agreement. The agreement will comply with the applicable provisions of Regulation 81-102 and will also provide for the control measures described above, with the necessary adaptations.

Proxy Voting

The Fund Manager’s proxy voting policy (the “Policy”) stipulates that the voting of the securities or property of the Funds will be delegated to the portfolio adviser and, for the Funds that they manage, to the portfolio sub-advisers. It is therefore incumbent upon such portfolio adviser and portfolio sub-advisers to determine the manner in which the securities or property of the Funds will be voted. However, the Fund Manager reserves the right to provide specific instructions as to how to vote a proposal brought before the shareholders.

The proxy voting for the Funds managed by the portfolio adviser has been outsourced to International Shareholder Services (“ISS”) in accordance with ISS’ Sustainability model guidelines. In scenarios where the custom voting recommendations from ISS are inconsistent with the intentions of the guidelines or do not reflect the best interests of a portfolio, a vote override process can be initiated by the portfolio adviser.

The proxies will be voted by the portfolio adviser and its portfolio sub-advisers in compliance with the following guidelines respecting governance and social responsibility, which aim to maximize returns and ensure that voting rights are exercised in accordance with the best interest of the unitholders of the Funds:

- a. the proxies will be voted prudently and solely in the best interests of the unitholders of the Funds;
- b. the proxies will be voted so as to protect and/or enhance the long-term value of the corporation and the securities held on behalf of the shareholders;
- c. the proxies will be voted so as to control any proposed change which could substantially change the corporation’s financial and/or operational risk level; and
- d. where a conflict of interest is identified, the proxies will be voted in compliance with pre-established guidelines intended to minimize the potential for conflicts of interest.

Portfolio sub-advisers must furthermore:

- a. establish and comply with a proxy voting policy which is in compliance with the guidelines of the Fund Manager’s Policy;
- b. deliver the wording of their voting policy in force, and all amendments thereto, to the Fund Manager;
- c. deliver a quarterly voting report to the Fund Manager; and
- d. confirm to the Fund Manager, in a quarterly certificate of compliance, that the voting was done in compliance with their voting policy.

The following documents are available free of charge:

- (i) a copy of the Fund Manager’s proxy voting policy;
- (ii) a copy of the policies and procedures followed by the portfolio sub-advisers when voting proxies relating to portfolio securities; and
- (iii) the proxy voting record of the Funds for the period ended June 30 of each year (available from August 31 of the relevant year).

The Funds or their property are not subject to any litigation.

Designated Website

The Funds are required to post certain regulatory disclosure documents on a designated website. The designated website of the Funds this document pertains to can be found at the following location: www.fprofessionnels.com/en/.

Valuation of Portfolio Securities

The net asset value is calculated at 4:00 p.m. (Montréal time) on each valuation date, being any business day on Canadian exchanges and at the offices of State Street Fund Services Toronto Inc., an affiliate of the Trustee.

The net asset value per Series A unit of a Fund is calculated by dividing the total market value of the investments and other assets of each Fund attributable to the Series A units in question, net of all the liabilities attributable to the Series A units, by the total number of outstanding Series A units. The net asset value per Series A unit, as determined at any time, remains valid until the next time it is determined. The purchase and redemption price of each Series A unit is equal to the net asset value so calculated on the applicable valuation date.

The Funds are required to prepare their financial statements in accordance with the International Financial Reporting Standards ("IFRS"). Under the IFRS, valuation must be based on a price within a bid-ask spread that is most representative of fair value and enables market participants to use pricing policies as a means to determining fair value.

Calculation of Net Asset Value

In calculating the net asset value per unit of each Fund, the following valuation methods apply:

- (a) the value of any liquid assets, including cash on hand or on deposit, bills and notes, accounts receivable, prepaid expenses, cash dividends declared and interest accrued and not yet received, shall be valued at fair value;
- (b) the value of fixed income securities not traded on an exchange shall be valued by the Fund Manager or its valuation agent using the average prices obtained from a market-recognized pricing service. Where a price is unavailable, the Trustee shall use a price model that reflects the average prices observed in the market on the valuation date;
- (c) the value of securities listed on a public exchange shall be established according to the price of the last trade, to the closing price reported on such exchange or to the reasonable market value of such securities as determined by the Fund Manager or its valuation agent, as the case may be;
- (d) unlisted securities traded on an over-the-counter market shall be valued at the average of the closing bid price and the closing ask price on the valuation date, unless the security is included in the NASDAQ National Market System (in which case the security shall be valued at the most recent easily-available bid price);
- (e) short-term fixed income investments shall be valued at cost plus accrued interest, which approximates their fair value;
- (f) securities and other assets for which market quotations are not readily available shall be valued at fair value, as determined by the Fund Manager or its valuation agent;
- (g) restricted securities (being any security the resale of which is restricted or limited by means of a representation, undertaking or agreement by a Fund or its predecessor in title or by law) shall be valued in accordance with the requirements of Regulation 81-102;
- (h) exchange-traded options, options on futures and over-the-counter options purchased by a Fund shall be valued at the current market value, determined to be the price of the last reported trade on the valuation date or, where no sale is deemed to have occurred on the valuation date, then the average between the closing bid price and ask price on the valuation date;

- (i) where an exchange-traded covered option, an option on futures and an over-the-counter option is written by a Fund, the premium received by the Fund shall be reflected as a deferred credit that is valued at an amount equal to the current market value of an option that would have the effect of closing the position. Any difference resulting from revaluation shall be treated as an unrealized gain or loss on investment. The deferred credit is deducted when computing the net asset value of the Fund. Any securities that are the subject of an exchange-traded option or an over-the-counter option shall be valued in the manner described above for such securities;
- (j) futures and forward contracts shall be valued at an amount equal to the loss or gain on the contract that would be realized if, on the valuation date, the position in the futures or forward contract were to be closed out, unless "daily limits" are in effect, in which case, the value of such contracts shall be calculated based on the current market value of the underlying interest;
- (k) the value of a forward contract or swap shall be the gain or loss on the contract that would be realized if, on the valuation date, the position in the forward contract or swap were to be closed out;
- (l) margin paid or deposited on a futures or forward contract shall be reflected as an account receivable and margin consisting of assets other than cash shall be noted as held as margin;
- (m) liquid investments or other assets denominated in foreign currencies shall be translated into Canadian dollars at the prevailing rate of exchange on the valuation date, as quoted or otherwise provided by a bank or other reliable agent selected by the Fund Manager or its valuation agent, even where such rate is not the official rate of exchange for such currencies;
- (n) notwithstanding the foregoing:
 - a. if securities are listed or traded on more than one exchange or in more than one market, the price of the last trade, the closing price reported on the exchange or a reasonable current market value of such securities shall be determined by the Fund Manager or its valuation agent;
 - b. where no closing ask price or bid price is available for securities on a valuation date, such securities shall be valued at fair value as determined by the Fund Manager or its valuation agent, based on the most recently reported and available information;
 - c. the Fund Manager will comply with the provisions of Regulation 81-102 and Regulation 81-106 respecting Investment Fund Continuous Disclosure and with any other requirement set forth in applicable legislation for the purposes of calculating the net asset value of the Funds.

In the event of a conflict between the preceding rules and the valuation rules under securities legislation, it is understood that the latter shall apply.

If the value obtained from the usual valuation source is deemed not to really reflect the value of a security or other asset, fair value may be calculated according to the Fund Manager's instructions. In the last three years, the Fund Manager has not exercised its discretion to deviate from the valuation principles set out above.

Purchases, Switches and Redemptions

Each Fund may issue an unlimited number of units, and those units may be issued in an unlimited number of series. As of the date of this document, the units of each Fund are divided into six (6) series. Only Series A units of the Funds are distributed through this document. Details of the features of the Series A of the Funds are provided under "Description of Units" on page 37 of this document.

The main difference between the series of units involves the type of investor, the management fees that are payable to the Fund Manager and the other fees paid by the series of a Fund. Please refer to page 22 of this document under the heading "Fees and Expenses” and to page 24 under the heading “Dealer Compensation” for more information. Due to the differences between the fees for series of units, the net asset value per unit differs for each series.

Participants do not pay a commission, acquisition fee or back-end load to buy, sell or switch Series A units of Funds, with the exception of fees charged indirectly to the participants and described under the heading “Fees and Expenses” on page 22 of this document (please also refer to page 24 under the heading “Dealer Compensation” for more information).

Purchases

To subscribe for Series A units of the Funds, you must (a) complete our account application form; (b) pay an initial fee of at least $2,500, which can be allocated between several Funds (subject to a minimum investment of $1,000 per Fund); and (c) be an “eligible participant”, i.e. a member or an employee, or the spouse, parent or child of a member or an employee of a federation, association or professional organization (or of an affiliated organization) that has entrusted the Fund Manager with the management and administration of the investments of the eligible participants. The Fund Manager may, however, waive the requirements outlined in items (b) and (c) above where it deems appropriate.

Once the foregoing requirements have been satisfied or have been waived by the Fund Manager, a participant may subscribe for Series A units of a Fund by conveying his or her instructions to Professionals’ Financial - Private Management Inc., in accordance with an agreement entered into between the Fund Manager and this corporation. In addition of these instructions, the participant or its agent must deliver the subscription amount by cheque payable to the order of “Professionals’ Financial - Private Management Inc. “in trust”” by the next business day. A subscription purchases Series A units in one or more of the Funds selected by the participant on the forms prepared for this purpose. The minimum subscription amount for the Series A units of a given Fund is $1,000 and the amount of each subsequent subscription will be $100 per Fund. The Fund Manager or its agent will convert the amount accompanying the purchase order of a participant into Series A units of one or more Funds as chosen by the participant. The value of any Series A units purchased will be determined in the manner set forth under the heading “Valuation of the Units” below. No subscription fees will be charged.

The Series A units are available to all eligible participants, without commission or sales or redemption charges.

For more information concerning Series A units of the Funds, please see “Income Tax Considerations” on page 24 of this document as well as details about the Funds under “Distribution Policy” on page 35 of this document.

The Fund Manager reserves the right to refuse to open an account or accept an investment. Such a decision will be made within one day of receiving the subscription amount and such amount will be returned immediately to the investor without interest.

Redemptions

A participant may request that his or her Fund units be redeemed by giving instructions to his or her representative by mail to 2 Complexe Desjardins, East Tower, 31st Floor, P.O. Box 1116, Montréal, Québec H5B 1C2 or by email. Where a participant so requests, the redemption will be processed and the redemption value will be determined as provided under the heading “Valuation of Units” below.

The Fund Manager may suspend the redemption of units of one or more Funds in all periods when trading is suspended on a stock market in Canada or abroad, where the listed securities represent more than fifty per cent (50%) of the total asset value of the relevant Fund, without allowance for liabilities, and where such securities are not traded on any other exchange or the suspension is authorized by the securities authorities.

If Professionals’ Financial - Private Management Inc., as principal distributor of the Funds, incurs a loss as a result of a participant failing to meet requirements prescribed by the Fund Manager or by securities law in connection with the redemption of his or her units, the Fund Manager may require the participant to reimburse the Fund Manager for the shortfall.

The proceeds from the redemption of Fund units will be paid within two (2) business days following the valuation date.

Short-Term Trading

Investments in the Funds are generally made on a long-term horizon, but you have the possibility of carrying out switches between the Funds and the series of the Funds if your investment objectives change and if you qualify for the subscription (purchase) of the chosen series. We advise against switches that are made solely with the aim of anticipating the market. In the case of multiple switches by the same participant or group of participants, the Fund Manager may intervene by refusing the switch. Also, a short-term trade will be determined to be inappropriate where there is a combination of a purchase and redemption within thirty (30) days, which the Fund Manager believes is detrimental to participants in the Fund or which may take advantage of certain Funds with securities priced in other time zones or illiquid securities that trade infrequently. In such event, the Fund Manager reserves the right to refuse a purchase transaction with respect to a Fund, to notify the participant of the reasons for the refusal and to close the latter's account, if need be.

We discourage participants from carrying out short-term transactions. Such transactions can harm a Fund's performance and decrease the value of other participants' units in the Fund since they may increase the Fund's brokerage fees and other administrative expenses and hinder the long-term investment decisions of the Fund Manager.

Switches

Before switching, it is important to speak to your dealer and tax adviser to find out the consequences of switching.

Investments in the Funds are generally made by participants having a long term horizon, but the participants may make switches between Funds or between the different series of a same Fund if their investment objectives change, or for any other reason, and if they qualify for the subscription of the chosen series. For this purpose, the participants may contact their representative by telephone, by email or by mail at 2 Complexe Desjardins, East Tower, 31st Floor, P.O. Box 1116, Montréal, Québec H5B 1C2.

Where the units of a series of a Fund are switched for units of a series of another Fund, the switch will be processed and the value of the switched units of the series will be determined as provided under the heading "Valuation of Units" below. A participant may also ask to switch his or her units of a series of a Fund for units of another series of the same Fund if he or she is eligible to purchase (subscribe for) units of the other Fund series. Switching units of one series of a Fund to units of another series of the same Fund is not a disposition for tax purposes. It will therefore not lead to a capital gain or loss for the participant. However, switching units of one series of a Fund for units of a series of another Fund is a disposition for tax purposes of the units of the first Fund and may give rise to a capital gain or loss which will have tax consequences if you hold your units outside a Registered Plan (as defined below). You will find more information about this under "Income Tax Considerations" on page 24 of this document.

Unless otherwise specifically agreed, Fund units may not be transferred in property. All investments must therefore be liquidated by the account holder or holders and converted into cash before being transferred.

The switch will be made within two (2) business days following the valuation date.

Valuation of Units

The issue price for the redemption or switching of the Series A units of a Fund is based on the net asset value of the Series A units in question. All subscriptions, redemptions and switches of Series A units are made on each valuation date. The Series A units of the Funds are valued each business day after the close of the markets, at 4:00 p.m., Montréal time. To perform the calculation, we establish the current market value of the assets attributable to the Series A units, less any liabilities attributable to the Series A units, and divide the result by the number of Series A units then outstanding. The Series A unit price as at each valuation date is equal to the net asset value, i.e. the purchase price and redemption price for each Series A unit.

The price of Series A units that you buy or sell depends on the time at which we receive your buy or sell order. Transaction requests must be received at the offices of the Fund Manager before 3:00 p.m. on a business day to receive the Series A unit value established that day at the close of business. Any order received after this deadline will be processed on the next business day.

The Funds are valued by the Fund Manager or its agent on each business day, after which the daily net asset value per Series A unit is determined, as more amply described under the heading "Valuation of Portfolio Securities" and "Calculation of Net Asset Value" herein. Daily net asset values can be accessed without charge on the Fund Manager's website at www.fprofessionnels.com/en/ by clicking on "Investment Solutions", then "Performance of our funds" and then "Unit values".

Distribution of Units

The units of the Funds are distributed by the principal distributor, Professionals' Financial - Private Management Inc., directly through its network of representatives. Please refer to page 10 of this document under the heading "Principal Distributor" for more information.

Optional Services

Registered Plans for Tax Purposes

This summary is based on the assumption that the Funds currently are and will remain at all material times “mutual fund trusts” within the meaning of the Tax Act.

Accordingly, units of the Funds are “qualified investments” under the Tax Act for registered plans. The registered plans offered by us are as follows: registered retirement savings plans (“RRSPs”), registered retirement income funds (“RRIFs”), life income funds (“LIFs”), restricted life income funds (“RLIFs”), locked-in retirement accounts (“LIRAs”), locked-in retirement savings plans under the Canada Pension Benefits Standards Act, 1985 (“federal LRSPs”), restricted locked-in savings plans (“RLSPs”), registered education savings plans (“RESPs”), tax-free savings accounts (“TFSA”) and first home savings accounts (“FHSAs”) (collectively, “Registered Plans”).

Annuitants of RRSPs and RRIFs, holders of TFSAs and FHSAs, and subscribers of RESPs, should consult with their own tax advisors as to whether units of a Fund would be “prohibited investments” under the Tax Act in their particular circumstances.

There are no annual administration fees applicable to Registered Plans. The trustee of the Registered Plans is Canadian Western Trust Company.

Periodic Investment or Withdrawal Plan

You can buy Series A units of a Fund for an identical account on a periodic basis: once a month, once every two weeks or once a week, through a pre-authorized payments plan from your bank account without additional fees. Deposits must be of an identical amount and we provide a quarterly statement detailing account activity. We also offer an automatic withdrawal plan at no additional charge. Regular withdrawals could eventually consume your entire account.

Automatic Reinvestment of Distributions

Unless you tell us in writing before the distribution that you want to receive them in cash, we automatically reinvest distributions on the Series A units you hold to purchase for you additional Series A units of the same Fund. Distributions on units held in registered accounts are made in the form of additional units of the same series. There is no charge for this service.

Fees and Expenses

At Professionals' Financial, participants do not pay any commission, acquisition fee, inter-Fund transfer fee, back-end load or any other charge when investing in the Funds, selling Funds or switching units between Funds. Unitholders are subject to indirect fees that are paid by the Fund in which they invest. Such fees are described in this section. The Funds are “no load”.

The Funds pay management fees to the Fund Manager in compensation for its management services. These fees cover, in particular, investment restriction and/or investment policy drafting services, investment fund management, office facilities and equipment, administrative personnel costs, the payment of a fee to Professionals' Financial - Private Management Inc. in connection with the distribution of the units of the Funds, as well as marketing and promotional activities relating to their sale.

The management fees are calculated daily on the Fund's net asset value and are paid monthly. The management fees are subject to applicable taxes, including HST. The annualized management fees payable by the Series A units of the Funds are described in the following table as a percentage of the net asset value of each Fund.

When a Fund invests in an underlying fund, management fees of the underlying Fund are used to calculate the fee on the amount invested in the Fund. As a result, the Fund includes no management fees or incentive bonuses and carries no sales charges or redemption fees that may be expected to cause the fees payable by the underlying funds to be duplicated for the same service. There are no sales charges or redemption fees payable on underlying funds managed by the Fund Manager. Expenses payable by the underlying funds are nonetheless in addition to the expenses of the Fund. These can impact the overall management expense ratio.

Any change in the basis for calculating the fees or expenses of a Fund or any new fees or expenses to be charged to a Fund, which may result in an increase of fees or expenses charged to that Fund (or directly to its unitholders) shall be subject to a sixty (60) day written notice prior to the change coming into effect, it being understood that the approval of the unitholders of the relevant Fund is not required.

The following table lists the fees and expenses that you may have to pay if you invest in the Funds. You may have to pay some of these fees and expenses directly. The Funds may have to pay some of these fees and expenses, which will reduce the value of your investment in the Funds.

Dealer Compensation

The Fund Manager distributes the Funds through the sales force of Professionals' Financial - Private Management Inc., a wholly-owned subsidiary of Professionals' Financial Inc., which is the Fund Manager's parent company. The Fund Manager pays a fee to Professionals' Financial - Private Management Inc. for the distribution of the Funds, which is entirely paid from management fees of the Funds, so that you assume no direct cost.

Income Tax Considerations

The following is a general summary of the principal Canadian federal income tax considerations generally applicable to unitholders who, for purposes of the Tax Act, are individuals (other than trusts) resident in Canada, deal at arm's length with the Funds and hold their units of the Funds directly as capital property or in a Registered Plan. This summary is based on the current provisions of the Tax Act, the Income Tax Regulations (Canada) (the "Regulations"), and all specific proposals to amend the Tax Act and Regulations announced by the Minister of Finance (Canada) prior to the date of this document (the "Tax Proposals"). As the tax treatment of each unitholder may vary, it would be very difficult to comment on all the tax aspects. Accordingly, each investor should consult his or her own tax adviser regarding the income tax consequences of investing in units.

This summary is based on the assumption that each Fund will, at all material times, be a "mutual fund trust" under the Tax Act.

Income Tax Considerations for Funds

As a general rule, each Fund will each year distribute enough of its net income and realized net capital gains to the unitholders so it does not have to pay income tax under Part I of the Tax Act, after taking into account applicable losses and any entitlement to a capital gains refund.

In determining the income of a Fund, gains or losses realized on the disposition of securities held as capital property will constitute capital gains or capital losses. Securities will generally be considered to be held by a Fund as capital property unless the Fund is considered to be trading or dealing in securities, or otherwise carrying on a business of buying and selling securities, or has acquired the securities in a transaction or transactions considered to be an adventure in the nature of trade. The Fund Manager has advised counsel that the Funds will purchase securities (other than derivative instruments) with the objective of earning income thereon and will take the position that gains and losses realized on the disposition of these securities are capital gains and capital losses.

Gains and losses attributable to the use of derivatives may, depending on the nature of the contract relating to the derivative, be treated for tax purposes as on income versus capital account. Gains and losses resulting from securities lending, repurchase agreements and short sales by any of the Funds should be included on income account, rather than as capital gains and losses. Capital losses or income losses incurred by the Funds cannot be allocated to the unitholders, but may, however, subject to certain circumstances where losses are suspended or restricted, be deducted from capital gains or net income realized in other taxation years.

Income Tax Considerations for Participants

When you invest in one of the Funds, you may be subject to taxation from two potential sources: from Fund distributions or from the redemption or switch of Fund units.

Distributions by the Funds which are payable to more than one series of units of a Fund will be allocated proportionately to each series based upon the relative net assets of each series, after adjusting for series specific expenses.

The tax you pay on your mutual fund investment depends on whether you hold your Fund units in a Registered Plan or non-registered account.

Fund Units Held in a Registered Plan

The units of each Fund should constitute "qualified investments" under the Tax Act for Registered Plans. Annuitants of RRSPs and RRIFs, holders of TFSAs and FHSAs, and subscribers of RESPs, should consult with their own tax advisors as to whether units of a Fund would be "prohibited investments" under the Tax Act in their particular circumstances.

Unitholders who choose to subscribe for units through a Registered Plan will generally not pay any taxes on distributions paid or payable to the Registered Plan by the Funds in any given year. Similarly, no tax will generally be payable on capital gains realized by the Registered Plan as a result of the redemption or other disposition of such units. However, in general, the amounts withdrawn by participants from their Registered Plan and not transferred to another Registered Plan or used to acquire any other retirement income vehicle will be taxable for income tax purposes. Withdrawals from a TFSA and qualifying withdrawals from a FHSA are not subject to tax, and RESPs are subject to specific rules. Transfers by a Registered Plan from one Fund to another or from one series of a Fund to another series of the same Fund are not withdrawals for tax purposes.

Specific tax consequences may also arise as a result of death. Given the complexity of these rules, you would be advised to consult a tax adviser on this matter.

Fund Units Held in a Non-Registered Account

If the Fund units you own are not held in a registered account, you must pay tax on all taxable Fund distributions (whether they are made in cash or reinvested in additional units) during any given year. You must also report, on your income tax return, any capital gains or losses (by deducting from the amount received upon redemption the adjusted cost base ("ACB") of the redeemed or switched units and any reasonable costs of redemption) you realized or incurred upon a redemption of units or an inter-Fund switch.

At the time you purchase Fund units, the subscription price will reflect any income and gains that have accrued and/or been realized but have not been made payable. If you purchase Fund units prior to a distribution date, you will be taxed on the entire distribution amount even though the Fund may have earned the income or realized the gain giving rise to the distribution before you owned the Fund units. However, the amount of the reinvested distribution is added to your ACB which will reduce any capital gain that you will have to report in the future upon the sale of units. A participant should therefore consider this tax feature when buying units of the Funds. This could be a significant factor when buying units at the end of the year since net capital gains are distributed yearly between December 15 and 31.

If your distributions from a Fund in a year exceed your share of the Fund's income and net realized capital gains for that same year, the amount of the excess will be treated as a return of capital. Returns of capital are not taxable, but will instead reduce the ACB of the units you hold in the Fund. To the extent that the ACB of your units becomes negative as a result of you receiving a distribution on your units that is a return of capital, you will be deemed to have realized a capital gain equal to that negative amount and the ACB of your units will be increased by the amount of such deemed gain.

Upon a disposition of units, including a redemption to effect a transfer to another Fund, the unitholder will realize a capital gain (or a capital loss), to the extent that the proceeds of the disposition exceed (or are exceeded by) the ACB of the units to the holder at the time of the disposition and any reasonable costs of disposition.

Currently, only half (½) of a capital gain is taxable. A capital gain can be reduced by the amount of an allowable capital loss of the taxation year or by an excess allowable capital loss carried back or forward. If the disposition of units of a Fund gives rise to a capital loss, half (½) of this capital loss constitutes an allowable capital loss and may be netted against a taxable capital gain, whether such taxable capital gain was realized in the taxation year or in the three previous taxation years or will be realized in any future taxation year. For capital gains realized on or after June 25, 2024, Tax Proposals in the federal budget released on April 16, 2024 (the “Capital Gains Amendments”) would generally increase the capital gains inclusion rate from one-half (½) to two-thirds (⅔) for corporations and trusts (including a Fund), and from one-half (½) to two-thirds (⅔) for individuals on the portion of capital gains realized, including capital gains realized indirectly through a partnership or trust (including a Fund), in a taxation year (or in each case the portion of the year beginning on June 25, 2024 in the case of the 2024 taxation year) that exceed $250,000. Under the Capital Gains Amendments, two-thirds (⅔) of capital losses realized prior to 2024 will be deductible against capital gains included in income at the two-thirds (⅔) inclusion rate such that a capital loss will offset an equivalent capital gain regardless of the inclusion rate. Legislation to implement the Capital Gains Amendments has not been released. Investors who may be subject to the increased inclusion rate for capital gains as a result of the Capital Gains Amendments should consult their own tax advisors.

The ACB of your units per series of a Fund generally represents the following:

- your initial investment in the Fund; plus
- the cost of any additional investment in the Fund; plus
- all reinvested distributions; minus
- any return of capital; minus
- the ACB of any units previously redeemed.

To calculate ACB, you’ll need to keep detailed records of the price you paid and received for your investments, and also keep the tax slips we send to you. You may wish to consult a tax advisor to help you with these calculations.

In general terms, net income of a Fund paid or payable to a unitholder that is designated as taxable dividends from taxable Canadian corporations or as net realized taxable capital gains as well as taxable capital gains realized on the disposition of units may give rise to liability for alternative minimum tax to the unitholder.

Factors that could influence the amount of taxable capital gains received during the year are the portfolio turnover rate and the volume of transactions made by the portfolio adviser within the Funds. The larger the number of transactions in a portfolio during a year, the higher the transaction costs payable by the Funds in the current year and the higher the chances of the participant receiving a capital gains distribution. A high portfolio turnover rate should not be considered as indicative of a Fund’s historical or future performance.

What Are Your Legal Rights?

Under securities laws in some provinces, you have the right to:

- withdraw from an agreement to buy Series A units of a Fund within two (2) business days after you receive the Simplified Prospectus or Fund Facts document; or
- cancel your purchase within 48 hours after you receive confirmation of the purchase.

In some provinces, you also have the right to cancel a purchase, or in some jurisdictions, claim damages if the Simplified Prospectus, Fund Facts document or financial statements contains a misrepresentation. You must act within the time limits set by law in the applicable province.

For more information, see the securities law of your province or ask a lawyer.

Additional Information

Reports to Participants

Upon the initial subscription, and at least once a year thereafter, the Fund Manager will inform unitholders that they are entitled to interim and audited annual financial statements, and management reports of fund performance. The Fund Manager will request permanent instructions on the delivery of such documents and will explain how such instructions may subsequently be amended. Unitholders will receive statements of account at the end of every quarter.

Furthermore, not later than March 31st of each year, the unitholders (other than those whose units are held in a Registered Plan) will receive the statement required to enable them to fill their income tax return for the previous year. These information slips will contain your proportionate share of distributions of income, net realized capital gains and returns of capital made to you by the Funds.

Enhanced Tax Information Reporting

The Funds have due diligence and reporting obligations under the Foreign Account Tax Compliance Act (as implemented in Canada by the Canada-United States Enhanced Tax Information Exchange Agreement and Part XVIII of the Tax Act, collectively referred to as "FATCA") and the OECD's Common Reporting Standard (as implemented in Canada by Part XIX of the Tax Act, referred to as the "CRS Provisions"). Generally, unitholders (or in the case of certain unitholders that are entities, the "controlling persons" thereof) will be required by law to provide their advisor or dealer with information related to their citizenship and tax residence, including, if applicable, their foreign taxpayer identification number. If a unitholder (or, if applicable, any of its controlling persons, (i) is identified as a U.S. Person (including a U.S. resident or a U.S. citizen); (ii) is identified as a tax resident of a country other than Canada or the U.S.; or (iii) does not provide the required information and indicia of U.S. or non-Canadian status is present, information about the unitholder (or if applicable, its controlling persons) and their investment in the Funds will generally be reported to the Canada Revenue Agency ("CRA") unless the units are held within a Registered Plan other than, for the purposes of the due diligence and reporting obligations under CRS, a FHSA. The CRA will provide that information to, in the case of FATCA, the U.S. Internal Revenue Service (the "IRS"), and, in the case of the CRS Provisions, the relevant tax authority of any country that is a signatory of the Multilateral Competent Authority Agreement on Automatic Exchange of Financial Account Information, or that has otherwise agreed to a bilateral information exchange with Canada under the CRS Provisions.

Based on the current administrative position of the CRA and certain Tax Proposals, FHSAs are currently not required to be reviewed, identified or reported to the CRA under CRS.

Exemptions and Approvals

The Funds are subject to certain restrictions and practices set forth in the securities legislation, including Regulation 81-102. This legislation is designed in part to ensure that investments in the Funds are diversified and relatively liquid and that the Funds are properly managed. Subject to the exception described below, each of the Funds is managed in accordance with these standard investment restrictions and practices. A copy of these restrictions and practices is available upon request to the Fund Manager.

Inter-Fund Trades

Each Fund has received permission from its IRC to engage in inter-fund trades of securities with other Funds, provided that each such trade meets the requirements set out in Regulation 81-107 applicable to such trades.

Each Fund also has obtained an exemption which permits certain inter-fund trades between the Fund and other investment funds that are managed by the Fund Manager but are not subject to Regulation 81-102 or Regulation 81-107. All trades by the Funds in reliance on this exemption are subject to approval by the IRC.

What Is a Mutual Fund and What Are the Risks of Investing in a Mutual Fund?

What Is a Mutual Fund?

A mutual fund is a pool of money invested by people with similar investment objectives who become its unitholders. Fund unitholders share in the mutual fund's income, expenses and the gains and losses realized on its investments in proportion to the number of units they own. Unitholders liquidate their investment by selling their units which are repurchased by the mutual fund.

A mutual fund can invest in different types of securities, such as stocks, bonds, cash in various currencies, options and derivatives and also in other mutual funds, according to the mutual fund's investment objectives. Some mutual funds are diversified among several asset classes while other Funds invest in a single asset class. FDP Balanced Portfolio is an example of a Fund that invests in different asset classes.

When setting up a portfolio, it is important to consider the factors of risk and reward. Your choice of Funds should align with your investor's profile, so that it is consistent with your personal investment objectives and risk tolerance.

What Are the Risks of Investing in a Mutual Fund?

The value of the investments in a mutual fund generally varies from day to day, reflecting changes in interest rates, economic conditions, and market and company news. As a result, the value of a mutual fund's units may go up and down, and the value of your investment in a mutual fund may be more or less when you redeem it than when you purchased it.

Like all mutual funds, there is no guarantee that the full amount of your original investment in any Fund will be returned to you. Unlike bank accounts or guaranteed investment certificates (GICs), mutual fund units are not covered by the Canada Deposit Insurance Corporation or any other government deposit insurer. Under exceptional circumstances, a mutual fund may suspend redemptions (please refer to page 19, section "Purchases, Switches and Redemptions").

When you make investment decisions, it is very important to fully understand each type of fund you invest in, its risks and volatility and its performance and track record over time.

The performance and volatility of the value of the Funds' units depend on the type of securities in which the Funds invest. The range of risks will vary depending on the asset categories included in the Funds. The following are the main risk categories:

Market Disruptions Risk - The market value of a Fund's investments may fluctuate depending on corporate-specific events, general market conditions (including the economic conditions of the countries in which the investments are made) or other factors. Political, regulatory, economic and other events or disruptions that affect global markets, including war and any resulting occupation, foreign invasion, armed conflict, terrorism and related geopolitical risks, market manipulations, natural and environmental catastrophes, climate change and public health emergencies (such as outbreaks of infectious diseases, epidemics and pandemics) may cause markets to be more volatile in the short term, lead to unusual concern as to liquidity, and have long-term adverse effects on global economies and markets in general, including in Canada, the United States and other countries. The repercussions of these or other similar events on the economies and markets of various countries cannot be anticipated. These events could also have a significant impact on individual issuers or related groups of issuers. These risks may also adversely affect securities markets, fixed-income markets, inflation and other factors relating to Funds' units.

Stock Market Risk - The value of most securities and, in particular, equity securities, changes with stock market conditions which themselves are affected by general economic and market movements.

Sector Risk - The value of issues in one sector may behave differently than the market as a whole or in relation to other sectors. For example, technology stocks rose and then fell much more than other sectors following the end of the speculative bubble of years 1999-2000.

Specific Issuer Risk - The value of all securities will vary positively or negatively with developments within the specific companies that issue the securities. The higher the weighing of an issue within a Fund, the more its variation in value will have an impact on the value of the Fund.

Interest Rate Risk - The value of fixed income securities will generally rise if interest rates fall and decline if interest rates rise. Changes in interest rates may also affect the value of equity securities, especially those paying large dividends.

Credit Risk - Generally, issuers having a strong and favourable rating are considered to have a less problematic credit risk. This is the risk that the corporations or issuers will not fulfil their undertakings relating to the securities issued by them that we hold, or to agreements in effect. A Fund which invests in money market investments, bonds and other fixed income investments issued by governments and corporations is affected by the ability of the issuing entity to pay the interest or the principal when due.

Large Transactions Risk – A Fund may include one or several participants, including an investment fund, that subscribe for, or hold, a large number of units, as may occur, for example, when one Fund invests in another. Significant purchases and sales of the units of a Fund may negatively impact the performance of a Fund which the other participants of the Fund achieve, since the Fund may be required to sell investments at unattractive prices or to retain vast amounts of liquidity in order to pay for the proceeds of redemption or, in the event of a significant purchase of units of a Fund, to hold a vast amount of liquidity until it finds adequate investments to place them in. These transactions may also be required at an inopportune time, when prices are unfavourable, which may in turn have a negative impact on the Fund.

Underlying Funds Risk – Certain Funds invest directly in, or obtain exposure to, other investment funds (the “underlying funds”) as part of their investment strategy. These Funds will be subject to the risks of the underlying funds. Also, if an underlying fund suspends redemptions, the Fund that invests in the underlying fund will be unable to accurately value part of its portfolio and may be unable to redeem units. In addition, if the Funds request a significant redemption of their units purchased in the underlying funds, these underlying funds may have to sell their investments at unattractive prices to be able to satisfy these redemption requests. The performance of the underlying funds may then be affected.

Foreign Security Risk – A variety of different financial, political and social factors may involve risks not typically associated with investing in Canada.

Investment income received, and capital gains realized, by the Funds from sources within foreign countries may be subject to foreign withholding taxes. Canada has entered into tax treaties with certain foreign countries which may entitle the Funds to a reduced rate of tax on such income. Some countries require the filing of a tax reclaim or other forms to receive the benefit of the reduced tax rate. Whether or when the Funds will receive the tax reclaim is within the control of the particular foreign country. Information required on these forms may not be available (such as unitholder information); therefore, the Funds may not receive the reduced treaty rates or potential reclaims. Certain countries have conflicting and changing instructions and restrictive timing requirements which may cause the Funds not to receive the reduced treaty rates or potential reclaims. If a Fund obtains a refund of foreign taxes, the net asset value of the units of the Fund will not be restated and the amount will remain in the Fund to the benefit of the then-existing unitholders.

Currency Risk – The value of Funds that hold securities denominated in foreign currency, such as our international Funds, will be affected by fluctuations in the value of the Canadian dollar in relation to the value of the foreign currency. A decline (increase) in the value of the Canadian dollar increases (decreases) the value of the Fund.

Derivatives Risk – A derivative is a financial contract whose value is dependent upon or derived from one or more underlying assets. Some derivatives obligate a user to buy or sell the underlying asset, under certain terms, on or before a specific expiration date. Other derivatives give the buyer the right, but not the obligation, to buy or sell the underlying asset. The principal types of derivatives in which the Funds invest are options, swaps and futures or forward contracts, which constitute an agreement much the same as the purchase or sale of securities or currencies except that settlement is at a future date. Alternatively, options have an acquisition fee, but do not require the buyer to take up delivery if the investment does not prove to be advantageous upon its expiration. In the case of the sale of an option, a consideration is granted in exchange for a privilege.

Some Funds may use swaps to hedge against losses caused by changes in exchange rates. Index futures contracts can be used by the Funds as an alternative to creating or adding to security holdings, and currency forward contracts can be used to offset risk or to balance a currency corresponding to an investment position.

The risks associated with forward contracts are, for all practical purposes, the same as in owning the underlying issue. Because settlement is deferred, a participant may use leverage to increase a position in a holding. Mutual Funds are not permitted to use leverage or margin. Because derivatives are not exact replicas of the underlying issues, there are minor risks in using derivatives; specifically, the hedging strategy may not be effective and there is a liquidity risk. Besides, the price of a derivative may not accurately reflect the value of the underlying security or index.

Securities Lending, Repurchase and Reverse Repurchase Risk – To increase returns, the Funds may enter into securities lending, repurchase and reverse repurchase agreements consistent with their investment objectives and as permitted by securities regulation. In a securities lending transaction, a Fund lends securities held in its portfolio to a borrower for a fee. In a repurchase agreement, the Fund sells securities held in its portfolio for a single price and agrees to buy back the securities from the same party at a later date in the hope of realizing a profit. In a reverse repurchase agreement, the Fund purchases securities for cash at a single price and agrees to sell them back to the same party in the hope of realizing a profit. If the other party to these transactions becomes insolvent or otherwise cannot fulfill its obligations, a Fund may suffer losses. For example, a Fund risks losing securities it lends to a borrower if the borrower is unable to fulfill its promise to return the securities or settle the transaction. Also, a Fund could hold a security whose value is less than that of the loaned securities, if the value of the loaned securities increases in relation to the value of the security. To reduce this risk:

- (i) the Funds must receive collateral worth at least 102% of the assets invested in such transactions, which collateral is adjusted on each trading date to maintain the 102% minimum threshold; and
- (ii) the Funds will not invest more than 50% of their net asset value in such transactions.

To be able to engage in securities lending, repurchase and reverse repurchase transactions, the Funds appoint a qualified agent under a written agreement between the Fund Manager and this agent. The agreement sets out, among other requirements, the liability regarding the administration and supervision of the securities lending, repurchasing or reverse repurchasing program.

Exchange-Traded Funds Risks – Some Funds may invest a certain part of their assets in other investment funds whose securities are traded on a North American stock exchange (“exchange-traded funds”). Generally, mutual funds may only invest in exchange-traded funds that issue index participation units, which means that the only purpose of the fund is to hold the securities that are included in a specified widely-quoted market index in substantially the same proportion as the index or to invest in a manner so as to replicate the performance of the index.

As such, exchange-traded funds seek to provide returns similar to the performance of a particular market index or industry sector. Exchange-traded funds may not achieve the same return as their benchmark index due to differences in the actual weighting of securities held in the exchange-traded fund versus the weighting in the relevant index and due to operating and management expenses of the exchange-traded funds.

Although investment in these exchange-traded funds creates a possibility for greater gains, the investment techniques utilized may also result in magnified losses during adverse market conditions, as well as the potential for increased volatility.

Emerging Markets Risk – Funds that invest in emerging or developing markets are subject to the same risks as those listed under the heading “Foreign Security Risk”, but the emerging markets generally are more unstable than better developed markets. Because of the instability, the prices may fluctuate more sharply than in other more developed countries. Moreover, the stock market trading volumes in the less developed countries may be lower, and it may be more difficult to sell the securities.

Asset-Backed and Mortgage-Backed Securities Risk –

Asset-backed securities are debt obligations that are backed by pools of consumer or business loans. Some asset-backed securities are short-term debt obligations, called asset-backed commercial paper (“ABCP”). Mortgage-backed securities are debt obligations backed by pools of mortgages on commercial or residential real estate. If there are changes in the market’s perception of the issuers of these types of securities, or in the creditworthiness of the parties involved, then the value of the securities may be affected. In addition, for ABCP, there is a risk that there may be a mismatch in timing between the cash flow of the underlying assets backing the security and the repayment obligation of the security upon maturity.

In the use of mortgage-backed securities, there is also a risk that there may be a drop in the interest rates charged on mortgages, a mortgagor may default on its obligations under a mortgage or there may be a drop in the value of the property secured by the mortgage.

Short Selling Risk – Certain Funds may engage in short selling. A short sale is where a Fund borrows securities from a lender and then sells the borrowed securities (or sells short the securities) in the open market. At a later date, the same number of securities are repurchased by the Fund and returned to the lender. In the interim, the proceeds from the first sale are deposited with the lender and the Fund pays compensation to the lender. If the value of the securities declines between the time that the Fund borrows the securities and the time it repurchases and returns the securities, the Fund makes a profit for the difference (less any compensation the Fund pays to the lender). Short selling involves certain risks. There is no assurance that securities will decline in value during the period of the short sale sufficiently to offset the compensation paid by the Fund and make a profit for the Fund, and securities sold short may instead increase in value. The Fund may also experience difficulties repurchasing and returning the borrowed securities if a liquid market for the securities does not exist. The lender from whom the Fund has borrowed securities may go bankrupt and the Fund may lose the collateral it has deposited with the lender. Each Fund that engages in short selling is subject to controls and limits that are intended to offset these risks by selling short only securities of larger issuers for which a liquid market is expected to be maintained and by limiting the amount of exposure for short sales. The Funds also deposit collateral only with lenders that meet certain criteria for creditworthiness and only up to certain limits. Although some Funds may not themselves engage in short selling, they may be exposed to short selling risk because the underlying Funds in which they invest or to which assets of the Funds obtain exposure may be engaged in short selling.

Multi-Series Risk – The Funds issue six (6) series of units: Series A, Series I, Series R4, Series R5, Series R6 and Series R. Only Series A units of the Funds are distributed through this document. Please refer to “Description of Units” on page 37 for further details about the features of the Series A of the Funds offered through this document. Series I, Series R4, Series R5, Series R6 and Series R units are not offered through this document. The Funds may issue additional series without notifying unitholders and without their approval.

Each of the six (6) series of units has its own fees and expenses, which are deducted from the calculation of the net asset value of the unit of a series and reduce that value. If there are insufficient assets attributable to a series to pay that series’ expenses or debts, the assets of the other series will make up the difference. As a result, the unit price of the other series could also drop.

Taxation Risk – The Fund Manager has advised that, as of the date hereof, the Funds qualify as “mutual fund trusts” under the Tax Act. The Fund Manager expects that the Funds will continue to qualify as mutual fund trusts at all material times. If the Funds do not or cease to qualify as mutual fund trusts for tax purposes, the income tax considerations described under the heading “Income Tax Considerations” could be materially and adversely different in some respects, including that units of a Fund would not be qualified investments for Registered Plans; a Fund could be subject to tax under Part XII.2 of the Tax Act on its “designated income”; a Fund may be subject to alternative minimum tax; and a Fund would not be entitled to a capital gains refund.

There can be no assurance that Canadian federal income tax laws and the administrative policies and assessing practices of the CRA respecting the treatment of mutual fund trusts will not be changed in a manner that adversely affects the Funds or their unitholders.

Loss Restrictions Risk - If a Fund experiences a “loss restriction event” (i) the Fund will be deemed to have a year-end for tax purposes (which could result in the Fund being subject to tax unless it distributes its income and capital gains prior to such year-end), and (ii) the Fund will become subject to the loss restriction rules generally applicable to corporations that experience an acquisition of control, including a deemed realization of any unrealized capital losses and restrictions on their ability to carry forward losses. Generally, a Fund will be subject to a loss restriction event when a person becomes a “majority-interest beneficiary” of the Fund, or a group of persons becomes a “majority-interest group of beneficiaries” of the Fund, as those terms are defined in the affiliated persons rules contained in the Tax Act, with appropriate modifications. Generally, a majority-interest beneficiary of a Fund will be a beneficiary who, together with the beneficial interests of persons and partnerships with whom the beneficiary is affiliated, has a fair market value that is greater than 50% of the fair market value of all the interests in the income or capital, respectively, in the Fund.

Cybersecurity Risk – With the increased use of technologies such as the Internet to conduct business, the Fund Manager and each Fund have become potentially more susceptible to operational and information security risks through breaches in cybersecurity. In general, a breach in cybersecurity can result from either a deliberate attack or an unintentional event. Cybersecurity breaches may involve, among other things, infection by computer viruses or other malicious software code or unauthorized access to the Fund Manager’s or a Fund’s digital information systems, networks or devices through “hacking” or other means, in each case for the purpose of misappropriating assets or sensitive information, corrupting data or causing operational disruption or failures in the physical infrastructure or operating systems that support the Fund Manager or a Fund. Cybersecurity risks also include the risk of losses of service resulting from external attacks that do not require unauthorized access to the Fund Manager’s or a Fund’s systems, networks or devices. Any such cybersecurity breaches or losses of service may cause the Fund Manager or a Fund to lose proprietary information, suffer data corruption or lose operational capacity, which, in turn, could cause the Fund Manager or the Fund to incur regulatory penalties, reputational damage, additional compliance costs associated with corrective measures and/or financial loss. While the Fund Manager and the Funds have established business continuity plans and risk management systems designed to prevent or reduce the impact of cybersecurity attacks, there are inherent limitations in such plans and systems due in part to the ever-changing nature of technology and cybersecurity attack tactics, and there is a possibility that certain risks have not been adequately identified or prepared for.

In addition, cybersecurity failures by or breaches of the Fund Manager’s or the Funds’ third-party service providers (including, but not limited to, a Fund’s portfolio sub-adviser(s), transfer agent, custodian and other financial intermediaries) may disrupt the business operations of the service providers and of the Fund Manager or the Fund. These disruptions may result in financial losses, the inability of a Fund’s unitholders to transact business with a Fund and the inability of a Fund to process transactions, the inability of a Fund to calculate its net asset value, violations of applicable privacy and other laws, rules and regulations, regulatory fines, penalties, reputational damage, reimbursement or other compensatory costs and/or additional compliance costs associated with implementation of any corrective measures. A Fund and its unitholders could be negatively impacted as a result of any such cybersecurity breaches, and there can be no assurance that a Fund will not suffer losses relating to cybersecurity attacks or other informational security breaches affecting the Fund Manager or the Fund's third-party service providers in the future, particularly as the Fund Manager and the Funds cannot control any cybersecurity plans or systems implemented by such service providers.

Cybersecurity risks may also impact issuers of securities in which a Fund invests, which may cause the Fund's investments in such issuers to lose value.

Liquidity Risk – Investors often describe the speed and ease with which an asset can be sold and changed into cash as its liquidity. Most of the securities owned by a mutual fund can usually be sold promptly at a fair price and so can be described as relatively liquid. However, a mutual fund may also invest in securities that are illiquid, which means they cannot be sold quickly or easily.

Some securities are illiquid because of legal restrictions, the nature of the investment itself, settlement terms or for other reasons. Sometimes, there may simply be a shortage of buyers. In addition, in highly volatile markets, such as in periods of sudden interest rate changes or severe market disruptions, securities that were previously liquid may suddenly and unexpectedly become illiquid. A mutual fund that has trouble selling a security can lose money or incur extra costs.

Some companies have few shares outstanding, so a sale or purchase of shares will have a greater impact on the share price. Small company shares generally trade less often and in smaller amounts than larger companies, making them potentially more difficult to sell. Some companies can be affected by political and economic events. Securities issued by these companies may be difficult to buy or sell and the value of Funds that buy these securities may rise and fall substantially.

Some high yield debt securities, which may include, but are not limited to, security-types commonly known as high yield bonds, floating rate debt instruments, floating rate loans, senior secured debt obligations, convertible securities, high yield commercial mortgage-backed securities, as well as some fixed income securities issued by corporations and governments in emerging market economies, may be more illiquid in times of market stress or sharp declines. In addition, the liquidity of specific securities may vary widely over time.

Illiquidity in these securities may take the form of wider bid/ask spreads (i.e. significant differences in the prices at which sellers are willing to sell a particular security and buyers are willing to buy that same security). Illiquidity may take the form of extended periods for trade settlement and delivery of securities. In some circumstances of illiquidity, it may be difficult to establish a fair market value for particular securities, which could result in losses to a Fund which has invested in these securities.

Convertible Securities Risk - Convertible securities are fixed-income securities, preferred shares or other securities that are convertible into common shares or other securities. The market value of convertible securities tends to decline when interest rates increase and, inversely, to increase when interest rates decline. However, the market value of convertible securities tends to mirror the price of the issuer's common shares when the common share price approaches or exceeds the "conversion price" of the convertible security. The conversion price is defined as the predetermined price at which the convertible security may be exchanged for the related share. When the price of the common share declines, the price of the convertible security tends to depend more on the convertible security's return. Therefore, the price may not drop to the same extent as the underlying common share. If the issuer company is liquidated, holders of convertible securities will be paid before holders of common shares of the company, but after holders of senior debt securities. Consequently, an investment in an issuer's convertible securities generally entails less risk than an investment in the issuer's common shares, but more risk than an investment in the issuer's debt securities.

Depository Receipts Risk - Banks or other financial institutions, known as depositories, issue depository receipts that represent the value of securities issued by foreign companies. These receipts are better known as ADRs (American Depository Receipts), EDRs (European Depository Receipts) or GDRs (Global Depository Receipts), according to the location of the depository. An investment in depository receipts enables indirect ownership of foreign securities without trading on foreign markets. There is a risk that the value of the depository receipts may be less than the value of the foreign securities. This difference can result from several factors: fees and expenses related to the depository receipts; fluctuations in the exchange rate between the currency of the depository receipts and the currency of the foreign securities; differences in taxes between the depository receipts' and the foreign securities' jurisdictions; and the impact of the tax treaty, if any, between the depository receipts' and the foreign securities' jurisdictions. Also, a Fund faces the risk that depository receipts may be less liquid, that the holders of depository receipts may have fewer legal rights than if they held the foreign securities directly, and that the depository may change the terms of a depository receipt, including terminating the depository receipt, in such a way that a Fund would be forced to sell at an inopportune time.

Investment Considerations

Investment Objectives

The investment objectives of a mutual fund describes the fundamental nature of the mutual fund, or its fundamental features, that distinguish it from other mutual funds. The investment objectives may provide the type or types of securities in which the mutual fund will primarily invest under normal market conditions, whether the mutual fund intends to invest in a particular type of issuer, a particular geographic location or a particular industry segment.

Each of the Funds may invest in securities of other investment funds which are compatible with its investment objective, including funds managed by the Fund Manager.

Except as otherwise provided in the Trust Agreement and subject to applicable laws, any change in the Funds' fundamental investment objectives requires the approval of a majority of unitholders voting at a meeting called for this purpose. A notice of meeting of unitholders shall be sent to holders at least 21 days before the date of the meeting in question.

To the extent that investments are made by certain of the Funds in underlying funds, the investment principles and strategies used to select the securities of the other funds will follow the same criteria as those used to select individual securities, as described in the Fund's investment objectives and strategies.

Investment Strategies

The investment strategies of a mutual fund are the means the mutual fund intends to use in achieving its investment objectives. The investment strategies may provide the processes by which the mutual fund's portfolio adviser will select securities for the mutual fund's portfolio, including any investment approach, philosophy, practices or techniques used by the portfolio adviser or any particular style of portfolio management that the portfolio adviser intends to follow.

The Funds may invest up to 100% of their net assets in other funds, including funds managed by the Fund Manager and exchange-trades funds.

Temporary Defensive Positions

At the discretion of the portfolio adviser and/or portfolio sub-adviser(s), as applicable, each of the Funds may take temporary defensive positions that are not fully in accordance with its fundamental investment objectives and strategies, including by allocating substantial assets to cash, commercial paper or other less volatile instruments, in anticipation or in response to adverse market, economic or political conditions.

Turnover Rate

A turnover ratio or the turnover rate is the percentage of a mutual fund or other portfolio's holdings that have been replaced in a given year (calendar year or other 12-month period representing the mutual fund's fiscal year).

For each of the Funds except FDP US Equity Portfolio, the turnover rate of securities in their portfolios (and any underlying funds, as applicable) could exceed 100% if active trading is undertaken, but will not generally affect a Fund's risk profile. A higher turnover rate can result in higher operating costs for the Fund and increases the potential of a capital gain distribution during a year.

Risks of Investing in the Funds

There are risks associated with investing in the Funds, as described under "What Are the Risks of Investing in a Mutual Fund?" on page 31 of this document.

Investment Risk Classification Methodology

Each Fund's investment risk level is based on the standard deviation of the Fund's investment returns. The use of standard deviation as a measurement tool allows for a reliable and consistent quantitative comparison of the Fund's relative volatility and related risk. See "Investment Risk Classification Methodology" on page 38 of this document for additional details.

Distribution Policy

Each Fund is divided into units of equal and proportional value, without preference or priority over each other. For a participant, an investment in the Fund is measured in terms of the units held.

The Funds may earn income and capital gains. You receive these earnings through distributions. The Trustee calculates and distributes the net income of a Fund to participants monthly. Net realized capital gains are calculated and distributed between December 15 and 31 each year. A participant who has subscribed for Series A units receives these earnings in the form of a distribution that is reinvested in additional Series A units unless the participant notifies us in writing before the distribution that he wants to receive them in cash. Distributions on units held in registered accounts are reinvested in additional units of the same series of the Fund. Cash distributions can be paid directly to your bank account by way of electronic funds transfer.

The amount of distributions to be paid on the Series A units may be affected by the share of costs attributed to the Series A out of the total costs of the Fund and the level of redemptions for the Series A out of the total redemptions for the other Fund series.

Investment Restrictions

The Funds are subject to certain restrictions and practices set forth in the securities legislation, including Regulation 81-102. This legislation is designed in part to ensure that investments in the Funds are diversified and relatively liquid and that the Funds are properly managed. Except as set out under "Exemptions and Approval" on page 27 of this document, each of the Funds is managed in accordance with these standard investment restrictions and practices. A copy of these restrictions and practices is available upon request to the Fund Manager.

Standardized Derivatives

A "standardized derivative" is a derivative that is traded on a published market, whose intrinsic characteristics are determined by that market, and whose trade is cleared and settled by a clearing house. Standardized derivatives such as futures and forward contracts, options and swaps on securities, indices, interest rates or currencies can be used from time to time by the Funds for hedging purposes or to take positions in specific markets. Use of these derivatives can serve to offset losses that other investments might incur due to changes in stock market prices, interest rates or exchange rates, or to establish market positions. The writing of call options may be carried out to generate additional returns. A Fund will only use derivatives in the manner permitted by securities regulation. See "Derivatives Risk" on page 32 of this document for additional details.

Securities Lending, Repurchase and Reverse Repurchase Transactions

To increase returns, each of the Funds may enter into securities lending, repurchase and reverse repurchase agreements consistent with its investment objectives and in compliance with the restrictions prescribed by securities regulation. A Fund will not invest more than 50% of its net asset value in such transactions. In that respect, it must receive collateral worth at least 102% of the assets invested in such transactions. See "Securities Lending, Repurchase and Reverse Repurchase Risk" on page 32 of this document for additional details.

Short Selling

Each of the Funds may engage in short selling as permitted by securities regulations. In determining whether securities of a particular issuer should be sold short, the portfolio adviser and/or portfolio sub-adviser(s), as applicable, uses the same analysis than for deciding whether to purchase the securities. A Fund will engage in short selling as a complement to the Fund's primary investment strategy.

A short sale by a Fund involves borrowing securities from a lender and selling those securities in the open market (or selling short the securities). At a later date, the same number of securities are repurchased by that Fund and returned to the lender. In the interim, the proceeds from the first sale are deposited with the lender and the Fund pays compensation to the lender on the borrowed securities. If the value of the securities declines between the time that the Fund borrows the securities and the time it repurchases and returns the securities to the lender, the Fund will make a profit for the difference (less any compensation the Fund is required to pay to the lender). Selling short provides a Fund with more opportunities for profits when markets are generally volatile or declining.

A Fund will engage in short selling only within certain controls and limitations. Securities will be sold short only for cash and the Fund will receive the cash proceeds within normal trading settlement periods for the market in which the short sale is made. All short sales will be effected only through market facilities through which those securities normally are bought and sold. At the time securities of a particular issuer are sold short by a Fund, the aggregate market value of all securities of that issuer sold short will not exceed 5% of the total assets of the Fund and the aggregate market value of all securities sold short by a Fund will not exceed 20% of its total assets. The Fund may deposit assets with lenders in accordance with industry practice in relation to its obligations arising under short sale transactions. The Fund also will hold cash cover in an amount, including the Fund's assets deposited with lenders, which is at least 150% of the aggregate market value of all securities it sold short on a daily marked-to-market basis. No proceeds from short sales will be used by a Fund to purchase long positions other than cash cover. See "Short Selling Risk" on page 33 of this document for additional details.

Description of Units

The Funds are authorized to issue an unlimited number of units, and such units may be issued in an unlimited number of series; each participant's interest in the Funds is a function of the number of units attributed to such participant. As of the date of this document, the units of each Fund are divided into six (6) series. Only Series A units of the Funds are distributed through this document. Subject to the Trust Agreement, the Fund Manager may, without notice, create additional series of units of a Fund and authorize their issuance.

The main difference between the series of units involves the type of investor, the management fees that are payable to the Fund Manager and the other fees paid by the series of a Fund. Due to the differences between the fees for series of units, the net asset value per unit differs for each series. The net asset value of each Fund and of each series of units is determined as described under "Valuation of Portfolio Securities" on page 18 and under "Calculation of Net Asset Value" on page 18 of this document.

The registrar will maintain a register in which are entered the name and address of each participant, the number of units held by such participant and any other information deemed appropriate by the Trustee. Thus no unit certificates will be issued.

Each Series A unit of the Funds entitles the holder to:

- (a) at all meetings of Fund unitholders where all Fund series vote together, one vote for each whole unit of the Fund held by the unitholder and no vote for fractions of units, except where such fractions of units add up to one or more whole units held;
- (b) at all meetings of Series A unitholders of a Fund where the Series A of the Fund votes separately as a series, one vote for each whole Series A unit of the Fund held by the unitholder and no vote for fractions of Series A units, except where such fractions of Series A units add up to one or more whole Series A units held;
- (c) share equally in the distribution of net income and realized net capital gains attributable to the units of a Fund; and
- (d) share equally on liquidation of the net assets of the Funds attributable to the remaining units after the unpaid obligations have been discharged.

The units cannot be assigned, but they are redeemable, as described under "Redemptions" on page 20 of this document. Fund units may be split or consolidated upon prior notice to the unitholders.

The Funds do not hold regular meetings; therefore, participants will be entitled to vote only in such circumstances as are specifically provided under securities law or regulations and under the Amended and Restated Trust Agreement entered into between the Fund Manager and State Street Trust Company Canada. Consequently, meetings will be called and Series A unitholders will be able to exercise their voting rights in respect of the following issues:

- (a) a change in the basis of calculation of a fee or expenses charged to the Funds or directly to the Series A unitholders by the Funds or the Fund Manager in connection with the holding of Series A units of the Funds, in a way that could result in an increase in charges for the Funds or the Series A unitholders;
- (b) new fees or expenses to be charged to the Funds or directly to Series A unitholders at the request of the Funds or the Fund Manager in connection with Series A unitholdings in the Funds and which could give rise to an increase in the fees or expenses charged to the Funds or to Series A unitholders.

However, paragraphs (a) and (b) do not apply in the following cases:

- (i) if the Funds are dealing at arm's length with the person charging the fees or expenses; and
- (ii) if the Series A unitholders have received prior notice 60 days before the effective date of the amendment;
- (c) the replacement of the fund manager, unless the new fund manager is an affiliate of the current Fund Manager;
- (d) any change in the investment objectives of the Funds;
- (e) any decrease in the frequency of calculating the net asset value per Series A unit of a Fund; and
- (f) certain material restructurings of the Funds or reorganizations of the Funds with, or transfer of assets to or from, other issuers.

Approval by the unitholders requires the affirmative vote of more than 50% of the votes cast at a meeting of unitholders called for this purpose.

Unitholders of the Funds will receive notice of all meetings and will be authorized to give instructions concerning the exercise of their voting rights in proportion to their unitholdings in the Fund.

Unitholders will receive prior notice ranging from 21 to 50 days preceding the amendment of any terms or conditions relating to the units described above.

Each Fund is divided into units of equal and proportional value, without preference or priority over each other. For a participant, an investment in a Fund is measured in terms of the units held.

The Funds may earn income and capital gains. Each participant receives these earnings through distributions. The Trustee calculates and distributes the net income of the Fund to participants monthly. Net realized capital gains are calculated and distributed between December 15 and 31 each year. A participant who has subscribed for Series A units receives these earnings in the form of additional Series A units unless the participant notifies the Fund Manager in writing before the distribution that he wants to receive them in cash. Distributions on units held in registered accounts are made in the form of additional units of the same series of the Fund. Cash distributions can be paid directly to a participant's bank account by way of electronic funds transfer.

The amount of distributions to be paid on the Series A units may be affected by the share of costs attributed to the Series A out of the total costs of the Fund and the level of redemptions for the Series A out of the total redemptions for the other Fund series.

Name, Formation and History of the Fund Manager and the Funds

The Fund Manager was established by the Fédération des médecins spécialistes du Québec when it created a group retirement savings plan for its members in 1978. Other Québec professional associations or organizations, including associations or organizations of dental surgeons, notaries, architects in private practice, owner pharmacists, medical residents and French-speaking physicians, joined the Funds when taking similar initiatives for their members. Since 1988, Professionals' Financial also provides investments other than investments that are eligible for Registered Plans for tax purposes. In addition to the services provided to the members of its professional associations, the Fund Manager now offers services to all other professionals.

The Funds are mutual funds created under trust agreements governed by the laws of Québec entered into by Professionals' Financial, in its capacity as Fund Manager and settlor, and State Street Trust Company Canada, in its capacity as Trustee, that was amended and restated on May 22, 2014 to enable the creation of additional series of the Fund.

The head office of the Fund Manager, Professionals' Financial - Mutual Funds Inc., is located at 2 Complexe Desjardins, East Tower, 31st Floor, P.O. Box 1116, Montréal, Québec H5B 1C2. The Fund Manager's email address is fonds@fprofessionnels.com and the address of its website is www.fprofessionnels.com/en/.

The Fund Manager was incorporated on November 9, 1987 under Part 1A of the Companies Act (Québec) and is now governed by the Business Corporations Act (Québec); and State Street Trust Company Canada, the Trustee of the Funds, was continued under the laws of Canada.

Investment Risk Classification Methodology

To determine which Fund is right for you, it is important to know which Fund shares your objectives and risk profile. Your representative will help you to determine whether a Fund is right for you. The investment risk levels of the Funds were determined in accordance with the standardized investment risk classification methodology under the regulatory provisions adopted by the Canadian Securities Administrators ("CSA"). This methodology is based on the historical volatility of a mutual fund, measured using the standard deviation of its returns over a 10-year period. According to the CSA, the most comprehensive, easily understood risk in this context is historical volatility risk as measured by the standard deviation of historical performance. The standard deviation measures the deviation rate of past returns relative to average return. The higher the standard deviation is, the more the performance varied over time. However, you must be aware that other types of risk, both measurable and non-measurable, exist and that historical performance may not be indicative of future return, as a Fund's historical volatility may not be indicative of future volatility.

Here is the description of the terms used to indicate past volatility of a Fund:

Low – for mutual funds whose returns will generally fall in a band ranging from 0 to less than 6 percentage points over or under their average returns. This degree of volatility is generally attributed to Canadian short-term mutual funds and Canadian fixed income mutual funds.

Low to medium – for mutual funds whose returns will generally fall in a band ranging from 6 to less than 11 percentage points over or under their average returns. This degree of volatility is generally attributed to balanced mutual funds.

Medium – for mutual funds whose returns will generally fall in a band ranging from 11 to less than 16 percentage points over or under their average returns. This degree of volatility is generally attributed to Canadian and global equity mutual funds.

Medium to high – for mutual funds whose returns will generally fall in a band ranging from 16 to less than 20 percentage points over or under their average returns. This degree of volatility is generally attributed to mutual funds investing in shares of Canadian, American and global small capitalization corporations.

High – for mutual funds whose returns will generally fall in a band of 20 or more percentage points over or under their average returns. This degree of volatility is generally attributed to mutual funds investing in shares of corporations related to narrowly targeted sectors or to emerging markets.

If a Fund's units first became available to the public less than 10 years ago, the Fund must select a reference index that reasonably approximates or, in the case of a newly established Fund, should reasonably approximate, its standard deviation. The Fund should then determine its standard deviation using its available historical returns and applying the reference index's historical returns for the rest of the 10-year period.

In certain specific circumstances, the Fund Manager may be of the opinion that the investment risk level of a Fund determined in accordance with the above methodology is not representative. In such an event, the investment risk level may be increased, at the discretion of the Fund Manager, in light of other factors such as the type of investments made by the Fund and their liquidity.

The investment risk level is determined at least annually, or as soon as it is no longer reasonable in the circumstances.

You may obtain a copy, at no cost, of the investment risk classification methodology used for a Fund by writing to Professionals' Financial - Mutual Funds Inc., 2 Complexe Desjardins, East Tower, 31st Floor, P.O. Box 1116, Montréal, Québec, H5B 1C2 or at fonds@fprofessionnels.com. You may also call 514-350-5050 or (toll-free) 1-888-377-7337.

What Does the Fund Invest in?

Investment Objectives

The fundamental investment objective of the Fund is to achieve, through investment diversification, a return comprised of a steady income and medium- and long-term capital growth. The Fund invests primarily (either directly or indirectly through investments which provide exposure to such securities) in debt instruments of Canadian and foreign issuers (including debt instruments issued by various levels of government, including municipal governments, and by public and quasi-public entities) and in equity securities of Canadian and foreign issuers.

The fundamental investment objectives may only be changed with the approval of a majority of unitholders at a meeting called for that purpose.

Investment Strategies

The portfolio adviser uses a global top-down approach for managing both the asset allocation and geographic allocation, being mixes of Canadian, American, European, Asian and emerging markets equities.

The Fund's investments in the various asset types include mostly units issued by other investment funds. These underlying investment funds are selected according to their overall contribution to yield and risk/return profile. The Fund invests mainly in its family of Funds, but could also invest in funds of other families of funds and exchange-traded funds. FDP Balanced Portfolio may hold in excess of 10% of the units in certain other Funds in the Fund Manager's family of Funds.

Based on market conditions, the Fund may invest up to 40% of its net assets in foreign securities and up to 10% in emerging markets securities.

Investment Restrictions

in part to ensure that the investments of the Fund are diversified and relatively liquid and to ensure the proper administration of the Fund. The Fund is managed in accordance with these restrictions and requirements, which are described under the heading "Investment Restrictions" on page 36 of this document, subject to an exemption pertaining to inter-fund trades obtained by the Fund, which is described under the heading "Exemptions and Approvals" on page 27 of this document.

Description of the Units

A description of the units of the Fund, including their designation, attributes and characteristics, as well as the rights of unitholders to approve certain matters related thereto, can be found under the headings "Investment Considerations" on page 35 and "Description of Units" on page 37 of this document.

What Does the Fund Invest in?

Investment Objectives

The fundamental investment objective of the Fund is to achieve a long-term global return through an appropriate stock selection and by taking advantage of interest rate and currency rate shifts on world markets. The Fund invests primarily (either directly or indirectly through investments which provide exposure to such securities) in debt instruments of foreign issuers (including debt instruments issued by various levels of government, including municipal governments, and by public and quasi-public entities) that may be denominated in other currencies than the Canadian dollar and have different maturity dates. The issuers of securities may be established worldwide, including Canada and emerging countries. The Fund is not subject to any specific requirement regarding geographic diversity.

The fundamental investment objectives may only be changed with the approval of a majority of unitholders at a meeting called for that purpose.

Investment Strategies

The portfolio adviser and the portfolio sub-advisers may resort to both a top-down and a bottom-up approach with respect to the management of the portfolio. The top-down approach can be used for the appraisal of the prevailing economic conditions, to assess the financial soundness of sovereign countries, and to anticipate interest rate shifts and their impact on the term to maturity strategy of the portfolio. The bottom-up approach allows for an assessment of the specific securities of issuers, of the ability of the latter to meet their debt repayment obligations and of the balance sheet structure.

The Fund invests a major portion of its assets in fixed-income securities of non-Canadian issuers, including issuers in such foreign countries and corporations. Less than 50% of the Fund's net assets are invested in Canadian fixed income securities. Part of the Fund's investments may be made in high-yield securities, i.e. securities having a rating of BB or less.

The Fund may hold other investments, namely mortgage-backed securities, bank loans as well as shares. The Fund may also hold cash or short-term debt instruments in order to manage liquidity and risks related to prevailing market conditions. The Fund may also invest in exchange-traded funds.

Based on market conditions, the Fund may invest up to 100% of its net assets in foreign securities and up to 40% in emerging markets securities.

Investment Restrictions

The Fund is subject to certain restrictions and requirements contained in securities legislation, including Regulation 81-102, that are designed in part to ensure that the investments of the Fund are diversified and relatively liquid and to ensure the proper administration of the Fund. The Fund is managed in accordance with these restrictions and requirements, which are described under the heading "Investment Restrictions" on page 36 of this document, subject to an exemption pertaining to inter-fund trades obtained by the Fund, which is described under the heading "Exemptions and Approvals" on page 27 of this document.

What Does the Fund Invest in?

Investment Objectives

The Fund aims to achieve long-term capital growth. It invests in securities included in one or more American stock market indices in proportion to their weight in such indices, or favours investments whose returns track those of these indices.

A minimum of 60% of the assets of the Fund track the performance of the Standard & Poor's 500 Index. The Fund may also invest the assets that do not track the Standard & Poor's 500 Index in such a way as to track the performance of one or more of the following indices, which will be determined according to the specific requirements of the market: S&P 600 (small cap); S&P 500 Low Volatility; Dow Jones Select Dividend (high dividends) and S&P 500 Consumer Staples Sector (consumer products), or any other American market index the nature and principal characteristics of which are similar to such indices, meaning American market indices whose average capitalization or volatility may differ from those of the S&P 500 Index, or that generate a higher dividend yield than the S&P 500 Index or that may emphasize one of the sectors represented in the S&P 500 Index.

The fundamental investment objectives may only be changed with the approval of a majority of unitholders at a meeting called for that purpose.

Other US indices may be combined therewith for increased diversification purposes and to add value to Fund performance.

Market fundamentals are weighted to determine where investments will be made. Each Index is analyzed to determine its intrinsic value, opportunities over the medium and long-term and in terms of their relative performance.

What is the Standard & Poor's 500 Index?

The Standard & Poor's 500 Index, often abbreviated as the S&P 500, is an American stock market index based on the market capitalizations of 500 large companies having common stock listed on the New York Stock Exchange or NASDAQ. It is a free-float capitalization-weighted index and one of the most commonly followed equity indices.

The components of the S&P 500 are selected by assessing eight primary criteria: market capitalization, liquidity, domicile, public float, sector classification, financial viability, length of time publicly traded and listing exchange. The companies in the S&P 500 are meant to be representative of the industries in the United States economy. The S&P 500 index components and their weightings are determined by S&P Dow Jones Indices and can be found at www.spdji.com.

Changes to the S&P 500 are made on an as-needed basis: There is no annual or semi-annual reconstitution. Rather, changes in response to corporate actions and market developments can be made at any time. Constituent changes are typically announced one to five days before they are scheduled to be implemented. Announcements are available to the public via the website of S&P Dow Jones Indices, www.spdji.com, before or at the same time they are available to affected companies.

As a rule, the Fund minimizes its cash position and stays fully invested in the indices. The portfolio adviser may from time to time cover currency risk.

Exchange-traded funds, futures contracts or holdings of securities comprising indices such as the S&P 500 may be used.

Other index or sub-index securities may form part of the portfolio to an aggregate maximum of 40% of the Fund.

What Are the Risks of Investing in the Fund?
